From the Desk of Organising Secretary

Dear Colleagues,

On behalf of the organising committee we are pleased to invite you to participate in International CME on Surgical Pathology at Krishna Institute of Medical Sciences University, Karad. The CME is scheduled on 23rd & 24th August 2013.

The CME aims to discuss and expose the participants to the state-of-the-art knowledge in surgical pathology. Over the last few decades the branch of surgical pathology has developed so much that today its relevance is not only as a diagnostic modality but it also has the predictive values to be used by clinicians and oncologists to plan appropriate treatment for their patients. The two days CME will comprise lectures as well as case based discussions and will provide a forum for debate. We are sure the scientific sessions would be beneficial to practising consultants, clinicians and post-graduate students.

The CME is organised at KIMS University which is the brainchild of former Chancellor Shri. Jaywantrao Bhosale. His vision was to establish a health care set up for the rural population. To fulfil his vision, he initially started Krishna Hospital & Medical Research Centre in 1982 and later on in 1984 established Krishna Institute of Medical Sciences, one of the first private medical college in Maharashtra. Ever since there has been no stone left unturned by the management to take rapid strides in the overall development of this institute. In 2005 it was conferred "Deemed University" status by Govt. of India. It is now recognized as an Institute of repute not only in India but also abroad.

Harvard Medical School, Boston, USA, is a premier institute in the field of medical education. The distinguished faculty from there will be guiding the CME. This unique association is a landmark development and will be remembered for years to come. I am sure this CME will bring to you the latest updates in surgical pathology with a wide range of topics to suit your taste.

The organising committee will try its best to provide you all possible logistics to make your stay in Karad comfortable and pleasant.

We have applied for credit hours from Maharashtra Medical Council.

On behalf of the organising committee I extend a warm welcome to you and hope this mega event will be a memorable one.

Dr. M. V. Ghorpade,
Organising Secretary,
International CME on Surgical Pathology' 2013

International Faculty

Dr. Vikram Deshpande, staff pathologist at the Massachusetts General Hospital and an Associate Professor of Pathology at the Harvard Medical School. His clinical practice is focused on gastrointestinal diseases, but also includes bone and soft tissue pathology and cytopathology. His research interests are primarily centered around the study of pancreatic and hepatobiliary diseases. Dr. Deshpande has been an instrumental figure in establishing a novel disease entity, IgG4 related disease.

Dr. Eugene J. Mark, MD, Director of Pulmonary Pathology; Professor of Pathology at Harvard Medical School; Professor, Department of Biomedical Sciences, Cummings School of Veterinary Medicine, Tufts University, Boston; and a Colonel in the US Army Retired Reserve. He has been an International Visiting Professor at academic centers in approximately twenty countries and has directed numerous thoracic and surgical pathology courses in the USA and abroad. He has authored two books and twelve chapters. His research interest centers on the pathogenesis of pulmonary diseases and mesothelial neoplasia.

Dr. Parul Bhargav, Medical Director, Hematology, Coagulation and Flow Cytometry Laboratory, Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Boston, is interested in studying biological markers in hematopoietic malignancies. She was awarded the Eleanor and Miles Shores professional development scholarship for her pilot project RNA profiling study, to identify prognostic markers and/or therapeutic targets in Chronic Lymphocytic Leukemia. She has worked on newer markers in Hodgkin lymphoma and currently working on molecular pathogenesis of acute myeloid leukemias.

Dr. Megha Joshi, M.D, Chief of Pathology & Director of Laboratory Medicine, Lawrence General Hospital, Lawrence, MA, USA. She is the Executive Director of the non-profit organization she helped establish, AIPNA (Association of Indian Pathologists of North America). Megha was impressed by the cutting edge medicine practiced in the US, and knowing the first hand the situation in India, she wished to bridge the gap. She has a visiting professorship at Krishna Institute of Medical Sciences, Karad and at Saint George's University, Grenada and gives her time unreservedly.

The hospital and the medical college is involved in several community projects like HIV/AIDS, cancer, family planning, prevention of blindness, tuberculosis control, detection and prevention of malnutrition, diagnostic camps, school health check-ups and blood donation camps.

Places to Visit ...

Karad is a small but upcoming town in Satara Dist. It is situated on the banks of the confluence of Krishna & Koyna Rivers. It is on Pune – Bengluru national highway no. 4 and is well connected to other cities by road & rail. It is surrounded by many places of tourists interest like Koyna Dam, Ozarde water falls, Shri Ram temple at Chaphal and Satara etc. Radhanagari Dam, Dajipur Bison Sanctuary, Gokak Falls are few other places on 2-3 hours drive from Karad.

Mahabaleshwar, a hill station is 80 kms north from Karad. It is one of the few evergreen forests of India. It reaches a height of 4,718 ft at its highest peak above sea level, known as Wilson/Sunrise Point. It is a source of five rivers, the longest being the Krishna. The Venna lake, city market, strawberries and honey are the major tourist attractions. Mahabaleshwar is known for its points, from where tourists can enjoy the scenery.

Panchgani, surrounded by five hills of Sahyadri, is all season hill station elevated at 1305 meters above sea level and 18 km east of Mahabaleshwar. The magnificent scenery of Krishna Valley with its numerous hamlets, cultivated fields and picturesque view of the backwater of Dhom Dam can be seen along the whole northern ridge of the mountain. The five hills are topped by a volcanic plateau, which is the second highest in Asia after the Tibetan plateau.

Aundh, 40 kms northwest of Karad, is known for its hill temple, the Devi Yamai temple. The temple is very old but very attractive. The top of the temple has images and idols of various Hindu Gods. The temple complex contains the Shri Bhavani Museum, with paintings drawn by various well-known Indian artists including Raja Ravi Varma and the famous "Mother and Child" stone structure by Henry Moore.

Kolhapur, 'Dakshin (south) Kashi', 'historical capital of Maharashtra state', 'door of konkan', 'city of wrestlers', 'city of arts' and 'city of palaces and temples' is 70 kms south of Karad. It is situated on the banks of the river Panchganga and is the location of the Temple of Mahalakshmi, a Hindu goddess. Besides Mahalaxmi temple, the city has temples, lakes, amusement parks, museums, forts which are attractions for the tourists.

Shri Kshetra Siddhagiri Math, Kaneri is known for the Siddhagiri Gramjivan Museum, a unique project, perhaps the only project in India. The place is near Kolhapur. The history of self-sufficient village life before invasion of Mughals in Maharashtra is depicted in this museum in the form of sculptures. Each sculpture is lifelike and has a multi dimensional effect and lifestyle theme.
